A PLEA TO THE PUBLIC

There are several hundred fine young men losing their lives each day, sons, brothers, and sweethearts, in order that we may live a life of freedom—Do what we please—Go where we please—and believe in what we choose.

In a very close inspection made in the past month, we find there are still some who do not understand that we are at war, and just how serious this war is. About ten percent do not care or seem to care. This inspection shows that more than 90 percent of the cars on the highway between midnight and five in the morning are breaking the law. Drunken driving—bright lights and speeding. From now on this 10 percent can look for trouble and plenty of it. Won't you please co-operate, at least in a measure, try to save the lives of some of these boys.

A. & G. THEATER SUNDAY-MONDAY "DESPERATE JOURNEY"

Errol Flynn, Ronald Reagan and associates, whose names make for sale of tickets, engage here in a 1942 treatment of the three musketeers idea packed with action, shorn of romance and utilizing the third Reich for terrain.

The screenplay by Arthur T. Horman opens with the sending of a British bomber over Germany. It accomplishes its mission, but crashes in that country, killing all but five of its crew. These are captured, escape, then make their way through a series of adventures toward Holland, where they seize a British plane from the Nazis and fly back to England with military information acquired.

The exploits in Germany include destruction of an incendiary bomb factory, stealing a ride in Goering's private railway car, escapes over rooftops and otherwise from the military and the Gestapo, and the one-punch knocking out of scores upon scores of German soldiers, sentries and so forth. Two of the five are killed in the course of the adventure.

breezing along, as it does, over an entirely new trail in movie laughter.

And Lou have the roles of amateur detectives in the current achievement. Object of their quest is the solution of some devilish murder mystery and the crimes take place in a huge broadcasting station. Unmarked by the police as impostors, the lads lead a chase which obviously has been manufactured as the movie pursuit to end all movie pursuits.

Dan Monroe Russell, youngest son of Judge and Mrs. D. M. Russell of Gulfport, which was solemnized at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church on Sunday, December 27th at 5 P. M. the Rev. Father A. J. Gmelch officiating.

Poinsettias and palms were used on the altar and the enclosure inside the chancel rail was banked with the tall blooms. The entrance to the pews decorated for the families and relatives were marked with small clusters of American Beauty roses and fern.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her youthful blonde beauty was enhanced by a wedding gown of white Duchess satin made with the tight fitting bodice, long train, sweetheart neck trimmed in seed pearls. The finger tip tiered veil of illusion was held in place by a coronet of the pearls. She carried a loose bouquet of bride's roses.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin played by Mrs. Marie Weber at the organ and Miss Louise Armstrong accompanying on the violin. Mendelssohn's March was played for the recessional. Riece O. Bickerstaff of Gulfport sang "Untill" and Mrs. Lillian Tudury, aunt of the bride, sang Gounod's "Ave Maria."

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ernest Erwin, wore a woods rose faile with a touch of medium blue velvet and carried American Beauty roses with a spray of the same flowers in her hair.

The maids, Miss Ida Rose Tudury, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. George di Benedetto of Bay St. Louis, and Misses Dora Wilson and Gene Hopkings of Gulfport all wore the sweetheart blue faile applique in the slight darker shade velvet and made with the tight fitting bodice and full skirts. They carried the American Beauty roses with sprays of the same in their hair.

The junior maids, Misses Margaret and Rita Boh, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Boh, wore dresses of the same material and fashioned the same as the matron of honor and carried the roses.

Lieut. Russell had as his best man his brother, Truett M. Russell of Gulfport and as groomsmen were Hampton Hatten, Jr., and Ebb J. Fard, Jr., of Gulfport and Lieut. (j. g.) Harold A. Newham of Houston, Texas, and Lieut. (j. g.) Clyde O. Hunter of Mobile, Alabama.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Hotel Reed where amidst a glorious profusion of flowers and palms the bride and groom received congratulations. Receiving with Mrs. Tudury, mother of the bride, who was wearing a crepe model of dusty rose with a lavender orchid at the shoulder, was Mrs. Russell, the bridegroom's mother, who wore a lovely gown of garnet lace and a white gardenia shoulder corsage.

On the lace covered bride's table was the five tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature naval officer and bride and surrounded by white camellias cut from the bush planted by the bride's grandfather.

The tea girls were Misses Muriel Kergeson, Helene Kergeson, Rita Bopp, Jane Wolfe, Barbara Ann Trastrout, Ruth Perre and Eunice Tudury. All wore the floor length dresses of taffeta in the pastel shades.

The bride is a descendant of one of the oldest families of Bay St. Louis—a graduate of St. Joseph Academy sissippi State College for Women, and took her A. B. degree at Mississippi State University.

She is gifted with rare talents and has been prominently recognized for her work in aesthetic dancing. She was a member of the faculty of the Bay High School and held a responsible position with the United States government for the past year. She has been very popular in social circles and was honored with several pre-nuptial parties here and at Gulfport.

Lieutenant Russell is a graduate of Gulfport High School and took his B. A. degree and his degree in law at the University of Mississippi. He practiced law in Bay St. Louis for three years but closed his office to enter the service. He is with the United States Naval Reserves and is stationed at Burwood, La.

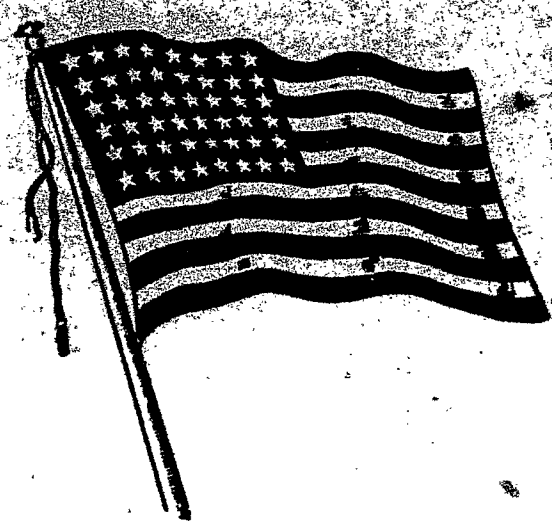

For traveling the bride wore a gold wool jersey worn with a small gold hat and brown accessories. The couple left by motor for a trip before going to Burwood.

OUR RESOLUTION FOR 1943

AS we begin 1943, it is in order for all Americans, to make one resolution and to mean what they resolve.

With the nation a year along the road of war, with all of us more conscious than ever of the sacrifices ahead and more determined than ever that human beings shall live, love, laugh and learn in peace, it is high time to appreciate the stern duty before us.

Practically every American "hates war." No Nazi or Japanese missionaries are needed to teach us the blessings of peace. For many months, as war engulfed Europe, we hoped and prayed to avoid the shambles of battle, finding it hard to believe that other governments and other peoples intended to wage war against us.

The illusion toppled at Pearl Harbor and was buried when Germany and Italy declared war upon us. Our own Congressional declarations were merely the legislative acknowledgment that we had been attacked. Axis killers already on the loose, enlarged their field, expecting to secure more and better game.

We would like to write a New Year's editorial advising all persons, old and young, to devote 1943 to their own development and culture and to their physical, mental and spiritual well-being.

Unfortunately, we must advise them to prepare to fight for their lives and civilization, to courageously uphold their faith in man and God and to make any sacrifice and endure every hardship that becomes necessary to preserve the freedoms, liberties and honors of mankind.

So, here is our resolution for civilians at home and our fighting men everywhere:

To so wage war as to win peace forever for all peoples of good-will and to organize just men to forever protect the world from aggressors who seek to rob, slay and enslave their fellow-men.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER OFFERS TWO LESSONS TO U. S. CIVILIANS.

THE nation that thrilled to the rescue of Captain Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions, after they had drifted for twenty-two days in the Pacific, can learn two lessons from what the distinguished aviator reports.

The first lesson if it is needed, reveals the natural tendency of men to turn toward God and religion in time of stress. While the men were lost and uncertain whether they would be rescued, one of them produced a Government-issued Bible and they organized prayer meetings.

Afterwards, Captain Rickenbacker declares "frankly and humbly we prayed for our deliverance" and "we prayed for food." Subsequently, "within an hour after our prayer meeting, a sea gull landed on my head."

The men ate the raw gull and used some of it for bait, succeeding in catching fish which they ate raw. The next day, another gull landed on his shoulder but Captain Rickenbacker says that he did not have the heart to wring its throat and "let it go."

The first lesson, cited above, is easy to learn because every individual, when confronted with the inevitables of fate, naturally turns to religion and seeks assistance from the Superior Being, master of men, of life and death.

The next lesson relates to the people of the United States who, on the home front, sometimes behave like little children in regard to small desires despite the nation's participation in a desperate struggle.

Captain Rickenbacker, as a result of what he saw, has come to the conclusion that "if they could bring the combat troops back here and put them in the factories, we would have production doubled in thirty days' time." He pleaded with factories and workers to make every human effort to turn out more planes and tanks and guns in order that the ordeals of American boys on all fronts might be ended as swiftly as possible.

The second phase of the current lesson relates to civilians, and the Captain declares that "if only our people back home could know what our boys are doing, both for us and for future generations, they would take this war a lot more seriously."

A single, old rubber tire, he related, would make up two to three of the rafts that were used to save the lives of himself and his companions in the Pacific. "If people knew that," he said, "they might not worry so much whether they have autos, or whether they walked or rode the subways or streetcars to work."

Moreover, he added "The cry and objection to being rationed on rubber and gasoline seem so insignificant, so ridiculous, when you see what the boys at the front have got."

These are the lessons that Captain Rickenbacker attempted to teach to the nation in his modest recital of his experiences after his plane went down in the South Pacific and he and his companions faced death for twenty-two days. They had time to think, they reached certain conclusions and the famous World War ace has passed them to the American people.

Let us hope that every reader of this article will take to heart the remarks of Captain Rickenbacker. Let them realize, regardless of discomforts that they think they endure, what the soldiers and sailors who are fighting for the preservation of our liberty and the security of our freedom are doing without and, in addition, risking their lives in their behalf.

Our Own Suggestion: Plant a vegetable garden in the Spring of 1943 and can all the foodstuffs that you can raise.

There are many people who believe that the war will end in 1943; we hope they know what they are talking about.

Almost anybody can tell other people how to give up something for the benefit of the war effort and, at the same time yell like mad because of some minor discomfort that touches his routine existence.

The New Year

There may be nothing new under the sun but 1943, to say the least, will be different. The peculiar times produce new problems and new solutions. The World War is an upheaval of economies, heroism and emotions. America is making history faster than it can be written, and the critical chapter of 1943 should see the turning point in our all-out effort to put every foe upon the defensive.

It will take a lot of money, many lives and much forbearance to achieve our purpose. Our hope for the New Year is that we may all measure up to the nation's foremost challenge.

We are grateful for the good will of our customers and the cooperation of this community. Our stockholders, officers and employees join with us in wishing you and yours a joyous holiday season, with faith in the just cause for which we fight and complete confidence in victory.

MISS IRIS DAVIS AND SERGEANT JOSEPH A. FOLSE MARRIED SUNDAY

Miss Iris Davis, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Davis of this city and Sergeant Joseph A. Folse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Folse of Jackson, Miss., were married at the home of the bride on Sunday, December 27, at 7:30 p. m. in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

The wedding though a home wedding was an exceptionally pretty one and the double ring ceremony was performed before an improvised altar banked with great clusters of pink gladioli lighted by white candles in silver holders. The living room was bright with Christmas decorations and a large Christmas tree aglow with lights.

Mrs. J. Briscoe Goldman at the piano and Mrs. Catherine Thomas on the violin played several pre-nuptial selections but for the entrance of the bridal party the chorus from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. Sidney Otis of Logtown who played for the bride's parents. Mendelssohn's march was played for the recessional.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was sweet and dainty in a white satin wedding gown fashioned with the tight bodice and full skirt made with the long train. She wore a necklace and earrings of pearls. The half length veil of illusion was held in place with a wreath of tube roses and she carried the old fashioned bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid.

She had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Dorey Davis who wore a gown of blue pink satin and Miss Helene Kergosien who wore cream satin. They also carried the pink carnations with sprays of the same in their hair.

Sergeant Folse had as his best man his former classmate Jack Roell of Jackson, Miss., and as groomsmen Billy Matthews of New Orleans and Herman Holleman of Hattiesburg.

Following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom were honored with a reception at the home of Mrs. Sheldon Seuzeneau where Mrs. Seuzeneau received in a stunning gown of black and pink crepe. She was assisted in receiving by the bride's mother Mrs. Davis who wore a gown of black crepe, Mrs. Folse, mother of the bridegroom, who wore a becoming model of dark green crepe and Miss Nettie Holleman aunt of the bride who wore dark blue silk. All wore the shoulder corsages of pink carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Bay High and a New Orleans Commercial School and has held the position of secretary in the law office of Mr. R. L. Genin.

Sergeant Folse is a graduate of St. Stanislaus and the wedding is the culmination of a school day romance of five years. He is now in the United States Marines and they left on Tuesday night from Jackson for San Diego where they will be for the present.

For this estimable young couple the Echo and their many friends are wishing for them a long life of happiness together for "The lights will go on again all over the world."

Out of town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Folse, Mrs. Roell of Jackson, Miss Nettie Holleman and Herman Holleman of Hattiesburg, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Koch and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morris of New Orleans; Miss Dona Randolph of Hattiesburg; Miss Jackie Gilbert of New Orleans; Rev. R. J. Kirscheneuter, Camarillo, California.

—Mrs. Joseph Gilbert has returned from New Orleans where she spent the Christmas holidays with her son and his family Mr. Joseph Gilbert and her daughter Mrs. John Tooley and family.

PRETTY WEDDING OF MISS JANE JUDEN CLAIMS INTEREST

A very pretty wedding and one which claimed interest in Mississippi and New Orleans where the bride is prominently connected was that of Miss Jane Elizabeth Juden, daughter of Mrs. Marielouise Juden and the late Frank Juden and Lieut. Leonard Meltz of Philadelphia, Penn., which was solemnized on Christmas evening at 7 o'clock at our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, the Rev. Father A. J. Gmelch officiating.

The altar was decorated with Poinsettias used with the white candles and inside the chancel rail were glorious quantities of the same flowers and the potted palms. Entrance to the pews were marked with small clusters of the flowers.

The bride who was given in marriage by her brother Frank Juden was looking very lovely in a white satin wedding gown made with a lace bodice and a long train and the long veil of illusion was held in place by a coronet of lace. She carried an arm bouquet of white Stephanotis and gardenias centered with an orchid.

For the processional the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by Brother Romuald and Mendelssohn's march for the recessional. Preceding the ceremony Mr. Frank Juden, brother of the bride, sang "Because."

The bride had as her only attendant Miss Ethel Gex who wore ashes of roses crepe and lace and carried Talisman roses with a spray of the same in her hair.

Lieutenant Meltz had as his best man Mr. Walter J. Gex.

The ushers were Messrs. Milton A. Phillips, Sr., A. G. Favre, Lucien M. Gex, Ed Arceneaux, and Dr. M. J. Wolfe.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride where Mrs. Juden was receiving in a white crepe model, trimmed in sequins. Receiving with her was Mrs. Morgan of New Orleans who wore an attractive gown of black crepe. Both wore the shoulder corsages of orchids.

The house was artistically decorated in white gladioli and camellias used with the green fern and the iron stairway was entwined with smilax. In the dining room the bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and decorated with white camellias and four white candles in silver holders. In the center was the four tiered wedding cake which the bride gracefully cut.

The bride who is a general favorite in social circles is a graduate of St. Joseph Academy and of Mississippi State College for Women. She has been very active in volunteer work, was instructor in and director of athletics at St. Joseph Academy and for the past year has held the position of assistant cashier, Merchants Bank & Trust Co. She was honored with several pre-nuptial parties.

Lieutenant Meltz is in the United States Army Air Corps and is stationed at San Antonio, Texas.

For traveling the bride wore an Alice Blue suit worn with a small blue hat and matching accessories and the couple left on a short wedding trip before going to San Antonio where they will live for the present.

The Echo joins the host of friends in wishing for this young couple a long life of continued happiness which they so richly deserve.
